Surf Sega!

Sailing under the Sega banner this summer is Nik Baker, the UK's number one windsurfer.

Nik, 23, competes all over the world on the professional windsurfer competition circuit. Some of the events take place indoors around special pools lined by up to 32 massive fans which can whip up wind speeds of around 28 knots. Nik and his fellow competitors perform death defying loops and spectacular somersaults on their boards in pursuit of championship honours.

Nik Baker.

Keep an eye open for Nik Baker's name in the coming weeks as he prepares to blast all challengers out of the water, helped, of course by Sonic on his board's sail!

PRINCE OF PERSIA

game type: PLATFORM
1 PLAYER

Superbly realistic animation made Prince of Persia one of the most acclaimed products Domark have ever released and at last it has finally been converted to the Mega Drive. It first saw the light of day several years ago on the Amiga computer, the incredible life-like movements of the prince never seen before in a video game. 1989 saw the conversion onto the Master System and Game Gear and became a big hit on both 8-bit systems. Mega Drive owners who have already seen very realistic animation with Flashback and Another World won't be as impressed by its graphics as others have been.

The evil Grand Vizier has captured the beautiful princess and, in the role of the brave and fearless prince - original story line - you must move fast to escape your cell, avoiding traps, palace guards and figuring out brain teasing puzzles along the way. To save the light of your life you must complete the entire game within 80 minutes or else she's doomed. Incidentally, achieving this within an hour is no easy task! Prince of Persia is split into 12 levels, each divided into the three main sections of the game: dungeons, the palace and the top of the tower where the princess awaits. The game takes in the odd sword fight with a guard, and you get hundreds of rooms in each level, but the problem is they all look near identical to each other. Playing this game is a little like walking around a maze, constantly trying to get that bit further.

The game does make full use of the Mega Drives' capabilities, and no one can deny that the animation is spectacular, but basically Prince of Persia is an outdated platform game, all be it glossed over with some excellent animation. - DG.

JAMES POND 3

game type:
ARCADE
1 PLAYER

'Electronic Arts' most unlikely hero, aquatic secret agent James Pond is back on the trail of arch villain Dr Maybe (first seen and defeated in the original Pond cart Roboood).

This time, however, the gill-man from F.I.S.H. must pursue the mad Doctor into outer space. The arch villain from J.A.W.S. has discovered that the moon is not only made up of cheese, but a whole variety of dairy products, and has hijacked a space probe to execute his most cunning plan yet. By mining high quality Moon cheese he will monopolise the world's cheese market! The consequences will be terrible. The dairy industry we know and love will turn sour overnight! Hundreds of cows will be made redundant! You get the dreadful picture...

Helping out on Operation Starfish (star-fish gedditi?) is agent-in-training Finnius Frog. Although slow (and somewhat green) compared to Pond, the little Frog holds the key to the completion of the game. (Tip: his powerful back legs help him jump higher than his companion, and he's able to squeeze through very small holes).

Can James Pond bring Dr Maybe back down to earth or will he end up as fish fingers? Only this 16Meg cart holds the key. If you feel that the first two adventures pretty much exhausted the potential of Pond, James Pond 3 will come as a pleasant surprise. It's an above-average platformer, with some quite difficult stages full

CASTLEVANIA - THE NEW GENERATION

game type: PLATFORM
1 PLAYER

Castlevania - The New Generation is set in 1897 and a long-lasting battle between Count Dracula and mere mortals has died down! However, using a ceremony of evil vampire Elizabeth Bartley has caused a war to conjure up the human souls of Europe in an effort to revive her uncle Drac.

Your task is to prevent the enthusiastic Elizabeth reviving her old uncle, and you begin this by selecting to play the role of one of two characters. The first choice on offer is John Morris, whose main weapon is the Vampire Killer Whip, which not only destroys enemies, but is handy for hooking onto ceilings which is a plus in this game. The other character is Eric Lecarde whose main weapon is a witches spear. Both the whip and spear contain four different levels of power (each time you pick up a coat of arms your weapon will go up a level, while injury causes the level to decrease).

Castlevania is crawling with items awaiting collection and the most available are candles; the thin ones contain a surprise and thick ones hold an attack item. A surprise can reveal a good thing such as an extra life or a jewel, or it can decrease your life meter by half. An attack item will give you a special weapon such as a boomerang. However, each time you use this your amount of jewels diminish. The game is played over six stages; each consisting of various routes. A large and sometimes very nasty end-of-level boss will appear at the end of each stage. Each room reveals a different interior and the baddies change throughout.

Castlevania - The New Generation actually looks and plays in a similar way to the Shinobi series - you walk along different platforms whilst bumping off baddies and collecting various items. Even the graphics are in the same league. The level of interest within this game will have you coming back for more. Very addictive and extremely challenging. - DG.

of delicious graphical touches. Despite the spaced-out location the game has loads of atmosphere.

A map screen helps you plot your progress, but be warned: the moonscape play area is awash with secret levels and routes. At least a useful password feature ensures that you'll not have to retreat old ground when returning after a screen-break.

James Pond 3 is probably the best Pond epic yet. It's fun to play, the graphics are outstanding, and even experienced platform players will, at some stage, be left floundering. - SM.

MEGA DRIVE 32: THE NEXT GENERATION!

New hardware to boost Mega Drive performance

As we speculated last issue (Short Bursts, STC 24), Sega have plans to boost the performance of the Mega Drive, leaping it into the 'next generation' of 32-bit games.

Towards the end of the year Sega will release an add-on, known as the Mega Drive 32, which will plug into the game slot of all existing Mega Drives giving '2x32 bits' of processing power. This means faster processing speed, over 250 colours available, polygon technology graphics, CD quality sound and more.

The Mega Drive 32 will play both current Mega-CD discs and Mega Drive carts as well as a new generation of games being specially written for it. These will undoubtedly follow along the lines of the ground-breaking 'Virtua' titles like Virtua Racing and Virtua Fighter.

Initially available only as an add-on for existing MD owners and selling for £149, the Mega Drive 32 will later become an integral part of a new Mega Drive console (Mega Drive 3?) which is planned for early next year.

The Mega Drive 32 puts the Mega Drive right up there with the new wave of 32-bit consoles currently appearing in the shops and paves the way for the coming of Saturn, Sega's 'mega-mega' new console!

SEGA'S SUMMER OFFENSIVE

Hot new games lined up to make summer sizzle!

An arcade offering for the Menacer Light Gun and three mould-breaking adventure games for the Mega Drive are just some of the new games on the way from Sega.

Bodycount

This latest addition to the range of games designed for the Menacer Light Gun features a very simple plot. Aliens have taken over Earth and you are Jon Steadman the resistance movement leader. You have to obliterate them before they get you!

Bodycount boasts five explosive levels, 1-2 player option and comes on an 8-megabit cart. On sale now. Incidentally, for those who don't have the Menacer gun, it can be also be played with the Sega Mouse.

Relayer

The latest offering from the Treasure team. To date Treasure has produced Gunstar Heroes and McDonalds (due to be released in May) for the Mega Drive, both superbly presented titles. Relayer is no exception. You control Wayden in his quest to retrieve the four power crystals and save the world (kinda familiar huh?).

The game features a 3D viewpoint and it has incredible playability as well as a great mix of puzzles and arcade quality graphics.

It is a 16-meg game with battery backup, 15 enormous levels with some awesome bosses, plenty of strategy but with very easy to access menus and spells.

Expect to see it on sale around June or July.

Ragnacenty (working title)

To date the 'Zelda-type' of adventure game has been sorely missing from the Sega catalogue. Ragnacenty makes up for this in spades!

Featuring a top-down viewpoint it offers a slower but still basically arcade style of play. You are Hero, an ordinary boy who has the ability to talk to animals. You can get animals you meet to tag along with you and use them defensively or to attack. The scenes are varied with many dragons and monsters to beat.

Ragnacenty is an enormous 16-meg game with incredible graphics, gameplay depth and action.

If you like Zelda you'll love this!

Story of Thor

An absolutely humungous 24-megabit game!

Story of Thor is sort of a cross between Relayer and Ragnacenty, the viewpoint is between top-down and isometric. The graphics are beautifully animated with amazing sound samples, like water splashing and people groaning!

You'll encounter fire-breathing dragons that fill half the screen, goblins that are fiendishly clever and many puzzles and other characters. It has masses to do and the pop down menus are incredibly simply to use.

The storyline has you hunting for a golden bracelet which leads you onto other mysterious items and people.

bodycounts: now Light Gun action.

Ragnacenty; adventure in a 'Zelda' mould.

GIGALOPOLIS ZONE

CHAOS EMERALD 2

1. This is an upwards climb all the way to a point where you'll discover a choice of two possible routes.
2. As you enter the stage, ignore the ledge to your right and run Sonic to the next ledge where you'll see a Pogo Pad.
3. Leap up and land on the Pogo Pad, then use it to leap up to the right, and at the top bounce off the Pogo Pad.
4. Leap up and to the right to land on another ledge. You'll find another Pogo Pad which you should use to leap Sonic up, but to the left.
5. Keep using the Pogo Pads to go up, right and left. You'll find a TV containing a clock timer - use the Pogo Pad to land on it, then leap back down to the right.
6. Leap high, to the right and land on a ledge with another Pogo Pad on it.
7. Continue upwards - you'll see a ledge to your upper right without a Pogo Pad, but don't panic as this is designed to confuse you.
8. Use the Pogo Pad that Sonic is on to land on the ledge. Jump again to your left onto an L-shaped alcove to find the Chaos Emerald (if you had leaped off the Pogo Pad onto the ledge, you would not have been able to jump high enough to reach the L-shaped alcove). Sneaky!

Sonic Chaos Part 3

THE SPECIAL STAGES

TURQUOISE HILL ZONE

CHAOS EMERALD 1

1. Start off by standing Sonic on the TV-type monitor containing Rocket Shoes - then break the TV and ride the Rocket Shoes to the right (if you prefer, you can just play for rings and extra lives in this round and wait until a higher level to go for the Emerald).
2. The trick to completing this bonus round is to place Sonic below the middle of the screen to prevent him from drifting up or down. The Emerald is situated on the far right, so don't be tempted to backtrack and collect rings - continue riding the Rocket Shoes to the right.
3. The Emerald is in the middle of a circle of rings. As you have to be aligned just right to touch it, make sure you're in that mid-screen position in the last 20 seconds. You're awarded time and Emerald bonus points once you've successfully completed this stage.

SLEEPING EGG ZONE CHAOS EMERALD 3

1. Run right, leap onto the TV, release the buttons, let Sonic be drawn into the tube and allow it to run its course.
2. You'll come to a chamber similar to the previous one, only with a TV containing an Invincibility Shield blocking a tube entrance.
3. Don't touch the buttons or pad as you'll land on the TV, break it and automatically go into the tube.
4. This will happen another three times, so when you pass through the fifth section of piping, prepare to push up for that Green Emerald (which you'll see through a wall in a chamber to your right as you go up through a tube).
5. When you get to the top and turn left you'll see a crossroads connection ahead that goes up.
6. Press Up hard to go up and you'll be taken to the right into the chamber containing the Green Chaos Emerald.

MECHA GREEN HILL ZONE CHAOS EMERALD 4

1. Go right and leap off the spring, pushing hard right so that Sonic enters the alcove above.
2. Break the TV that holds Rocket Shoes, proceed left, drop down and push hard right, and go up as far as you can. When the Rocket Shoes fall away you will land on a ramp which you should go down at a lower right diagonal.
3. As you hit the bottom, push down to make Sonic do a Spinattack on the wall ahead.
4. You'll pass through a chamber and drop down slightly. When you stop jump up and break the block beneath Sonic, then have him do a Dash Attack to your right.
5. You'll go right and Sonic will hit a wall again. Jump up, break the block beneath him, repeat the
6. You'll see a ledge from the top. As the upper right ledge is too high to jump, jump Sonic to the left, up to the ledge, then leap right to the ledge you both were unable to reach from below.
7. Go right, and as you reach the end of the ledge you'll see a Red Spring. Ignore the Red Springs and TV's containing rings below Sonic.
8. Run off the edge and the Red Spring will take you upper right to another ledge.
9. Turn right to a TV containing Rocket Shoes, going as high as you can, pushing hard right. As the shoes fall away and Sonic drops to the ground, you'll see a Dash Attack and Sonic will go through a wall to your right and roll up a diagonal path.

10. Once you are at the top of the hill of springs, run right and leap high off the edge of the ledge (this will take you to another ledge where you'll see two horizontal red springs below).
11. Take another high leap from the ledge above the two springs.
12. On landing, look out for a step down and a Red Spring pointing up and to the right, which you should ignore.
13. Leap Sonic up and to the right, land on a ledge to the right of two horizontal Red Springs.
14. Run right and gently leap off the edge. Sonic will land in an area with a Red Spring positioned to his right and a TV with Rocket Shoes behind and above it.
15. Retrieve the Rocket Shoes and go to the top of the screen without touching the joy pad!
16. Once you eventually get to the far right side Sonic can collect the Grey Chaos Emerald. If you successfully leaped over the last set of Rocket Shoes you would then start to cross a collapsing bridge of blocks - quickly turn around and leap back to the Rocket Shoes you missed. Collect them and head for the top of the screen and you'll drop down to the Grey Chaos Emerald.

AQUA PLANET ZONE CHAOS EMERALD 5

1. To head straight to the Purple Chaos Emerald, go right into the tunnel and let it carry you to the far right.
2. Go straight up. Take the second exit to your left by pushing hard left, before you get to the second junction box as you go up. As soon as you enter the left exit, press down to go into a tube below.
3. Now all that remains is for you to sit back and watch Sonic zoom around a series of tunnels. As soon as you see the chamber coming from the left, press Up and hit a button to avoid hitting the Red Spring and being bounced back to the tube.
4. Leap across and collect the final Emerald at your leisure!

Now all that remains is for you to head into the Electric Egg Zone and beat Robonik for that gem of an end sequence.

HAR HAR HAR!

WE RULED

OF YEARS...

"ALL OF THE WORLDS OF THE LIVING WERE OURS..."

"THEN CAME THE TIME OF THE GREAT DYING..."

"WE PASSED THROUGH DEATH'S DOOR TO JOIN OUR ANCESTORS IN GHOST WORLD..."

"WE WATCHED AS YOUR ANCESTORS
DRAGGED THEMSELVES ONTO THEIR FEET
AND TOOK THEIR FIRST STUMBLING STEPS..."

"WE WAITED FOR THEM TO CRAWL BACK INTO
OBLIVION, BUT INSTEAD THEY GREW MORE NUMEROUS..."

...BUT NOW THE
TIME HAS COME FOR US TO RECLAIM OUR BIRTHRIGHT.

WE WILL

"THEY CREATED THE STAIRWAY OF STEPPING STONES USING A POWER JAR."

AFTER CONQUERING THE SKYROCK MOUNTAINS WE'LL ATTACK MONSTER WORLD.

TOMORROW I'LL TURN YOU INTO A GHOST AND YOU CAN JOIN MY ARMIES.

A GHOST? HOW'RE YOU GOING TO DO THAT?

WELL, YOU HAVE TO BE DEAD FIRST...

More Oldfash?

Dear STC or whoever,

Please make sure you get things right before you tell us we send in rubbish (STC 20). I wouldn't say if you were nice about other people's stuff, but I say that the things you receive aren't worth printing (I have won competitions with things you have rejected). I suggest you get your own act sorted before you tell us kids off.

David P Newman, Ellington, Morpeth.
Sonic Water Fun Game Winner.

If you'd carefully read STC 20, David, you would have noticed I said only a small number of letters and drawings aren't good enough to appear - a very small number. Most are excellent, it's just that there isn't enough room to print them all - much we'd like to. As for "...telling us kids off," I don't think so, do you? 'Kids' don't read STC - Sonic Boomers do!

Girl Talk

Dear STC,

I have noticed that most of the letters printed in STC are from boys. Can you tell me why hardly any of them are from girls as I for one have sent in loads of letters.

Kathryn Thompson, Huyton, Liverpool.
Sonic Water Fun Game Winner.

For some unknown reason STC has more male-hume readers than female. Personally I can't understand it as I am a bit of a cyber sex-symbol really.

Budding Editor

Dear STC,

I implore you to print my diligent contribution in your esteemed periodical as I enjoy reading about the blue one. Yours, bungee jumping into the pool room.

Nicol Hay, Deans, Livingston, Scotland.
Sonic Water Fun Game Winner.

P.S. How about a job when I'm older?

Well Nicol, you make as much sense as the editorial humes around here, so I guess you're ideal for a job.

Diamond Gemmer! Sarah Payne, Llanllohan, Cardiff, Wales.
MS owner. Sonic Water Fun Game Winner.

Deserve To Dive

Dear STC,

I think I should be allowed to win one of your Sonic Water Fun Games because I am learning to swim!

Stuart Heard, Plaistow, London.
Sonic Water Fun Game Winner.

Interesting logic, Stuart. The editor's learning to hang glide at the moment - does that mean he should be hung?
